BOMBAY QUIET BUT MORE SALT RAIDS PLANNED

Death List Mounts Towards 200 As Riots Rage

BOMBAY, May 31.—Bombay was quiet today but serious trouble is expected tomorrow morning when the Nationalist volunteers plan a raid on the Wadala salt pans.

The strife between the Nationalists and the British Indian government which has held the center of attention for many weeks was related to a secondary position and Rangoon, Burma, was a focal point as riots continued there and the mounting death list approached 200. Latest estimates indicated the wounded and injured numbered more than 1,200.

Companies of the Vamern highlanders and a Punjab regiment were in control but they were difficult to cope with outbreaks.

Longshoremen precipitated the fighting when Indian workers were used to their places after a general strike. Retaliations took place and the rioting spread through the city between Burmans and Indians.

Hospitals were overcrowded and it was thought that there were many more casualties than those listed.

Robbers and Burmese dacoits have seized upon the state of disorder to institute a widespread campaign of pillage and murder, even attempting piracy on ships in the harbor.

The salt raid planned Sunday at Wadala will be conducted by 4,000 volunteers, Nationalists headquarters claimed.

FEAR SEVEN OTHERS MISSING ARE DEAD; RESCUE FIFTY-TWO

Squall Wrecks Ship Loaded With Crowd On Holiday

SANTA MONICA, Calif., May 31.—Three known dead and seven missing and probably drowned was the toll taken when the fishing launch Ameco capsized a mile and a half off the Santa Monica shore when it was caught in a heavy squall and a cross sea, a check revealed today.

The known dead are: Margaret Keller, 20, and T. E. Barnett, both of Los Angeles; John W. Lockhard, Pasadena youth.

Fifty-two others were rescued and today were recovering from the effects of immersion in hospitals.

Dozens of launches, speed boats and two coast guard cutters continued to comb the waters in the vicinity of the mishap in an effort to pick up bodies of the victims.

The Ameco, a forty-foot craft, was loaded with a holiday fishing crowd when it was caught in the squall. Fifty-nine passengers were aboard and a crew of three.

Survivors asserted the launch turned over twice when buffeted by the sea, throwing men, women and children into the water. They also reported that when the wind sprang up that most of the passengers ran to one side of the launch, thereby exposing the hull of the craft to the wind.

The cries of those struggling in the water were plainly heard by the crowds on the beach. Some of the victims clung to the sides of the capsized boat, while others seized floating objects until picked up by the Freedom, another fishing boat.

Capt. Joe Fudge of the Freedom reported that women and children were drowned as the survivors fought desperately to be rescued.

With high seas running, several boats filled with survivors, all of whom were only semi-conscious, had considerable difficulty making a landing.

When news of the tragedy was broadcast, friends and relatives of those on the Ameco rushed to the beach and made frantic efforts to locate the rescued or to get some news of the fate of the others. Police had great difficulty in restraining the great crowd which gathered near the scene of the tragedy.

PAIR ADMITS MURDER WAS CONSPIRACY IN ILLEGIT LOVE CASE

JEFFERSON, O., May 31.—Timothy Smith, 28, trucking contractor of Ashabula, and Mrs. Maude Lowther, his 22-year-old married sweetheart, today faced charges of murdering Smith's wife, Clara, 28, mother of two small boys.

The husband and his young paramour have confessed that the killing of Mrs. Smith Thursday night was the climax of an almost unbelievable murder plot, Sheriff Frank S. Sheldon said.

Smith and Mrs. Lowther are held in the Ashabula County jail here. Prosecutor Howard M. Nator said that affidavits, charging the pair with first-degree murder, would be issued today.

Mrs. Smith was shot and killed Thursday night while she sat with her three-months-old son, Donald, clasped to her breast in her husband's small truck on a lonely road several miles north of here.

Mrs. Lowther, who is a quarter-blood Indian, shot and killed Mrs. Smith with a 32-caliber revolver, according to signed confessions which are in possession of Sheriff Sheldon.

The girl held the gun three inches from the slain woman's head and fired the bullet into her brain, the confessions say. She had waited for nearly two hours for Mrs. Smith, who was "put on the spot" in true gangland fashion by her husband.

The two accused lovers have nothing but bitterness for each other now, officials said, and each accuses the other of the carefully plotted plan to kill the young mother.

"Smith put me up to it," the girl charges.

"She threatened to kill me if I didn't run away with her," Smith accuses.

Sniper Shoots Negro Accused of Attack In Oklahoma

CHICKASHA, Okla., May 31.—Chickasha was quiet today after a mob had stormed the jail and satisfied its vengeance on Henry Argo, Negro, accused of attacking Mrs. G. Skinner, wife of a farm hand employed on a farm near here.

Argo was shot and seriously wounded by a sniper early today as the mob, consisting of more than 1,000 persons, stormed the jail. Authorities at the jail said Argo's death was a matter of time.

The unknown sniper, according to authorities, crept up and fired through the window of the jail while rioting in the corridors and outside the jail was at its height.

The shooting of the negro was not discovered until the mob had been dispersed by tear gas bombs and volleys from the rifles of National Guardsmen hurried to the scene.

The mob began gathering shortly after word of the negro's arrest had circulated and stormed the jail. Bricks and other missiles were hurled and the door of the jail was battered in.

The mob thronged the corridors but the attack was repulsed when they reached the second floor of the building where the negro was held behind a heavy steel door.

DIRIGIBLE MOORED AFTER SUCCESSFUL BATTLE WITH STORM

Marine Injured At Landing; Will Depart Monday

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 31.—Escorted by two dirigibles and five airplanes, the Graf Zeppelin, monarch of the air, landed at the Lakehurst naval air station field at 7:25 o'clock this morning, completing the fifth lap of a 12,000 mile tri-continental flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, via South America.

Cheers from about 1,000 spectators greeted the German dirigible as she swooped gracefully across the field from the south and swooped down to a graceful landing. She presented a pretty picture as she nosed in proudly, her silvery sides gleaming in the bright morning sunlight.

The Graf had left Friedrichshafen on Sunday, May 18, at 12:18 p. m. Her flying time from Friedrichshafen to South America and north to Lakehurst, a distance of 12,000 miles, was 210 hours and fifty-seven minutes.

A slight accident marred the landing of the Graf. Immediately the dirigible came to rest on the field, several hundred yards from the hangar, the ground crew of two hundred marines rushed forward to assist in the landing. They were followed by a throng of spectators.

Ropes were dropped from the dirigible. In pulling the big ship into line preparatory to pushing her into the hangar, about fifteen marines, hanging from the ropes, were hoisted twenty feet into the air when a gust of wind lifted a free swinging section of the dirigible. As their hands became tired they dropped like monkeys from the branches of a tree.

One man was perhaps seriously injured and several others sustained minor bruises. The injured man was carried to an automobile. He said his name was Kinery, an assistant carpenter's mate.

The Graf was attached to Lakehurst's new portable mooring mast. Then tractors, attached to the mast, backed the dirigible into the hangar and, at 8:10 a. m. the big ship was snugly berthed. The passengers remained on the Zeppelin while this procedure was carried out.

The dirigibles that escorted the Graf Zeppelin into Lakehurst were the Los Angeles which left the hangar here early today, and the Vigilante which had been quartered at the government proving ground at Aberdeen, Md.

At 8:30 the passengers disembarked and were taken to the welfare building to be questioned by the customs authorities.

Commander Hugo Eckener of the Graf was escorted to the press headquarters in the hangar where he was interviewed by a hundred or more reporters. He was attired in a blue uniform and blue cap with a gold insignia upon it. He did not appear at all fatigued. He smoked a cigarette as he gave his answers through an interpreter.

He said the squall the Graf Zeppelin went through last night, between Bermuda and the Atlantic coast north of Florida, was the worst the Graf Zeppelin had encountered. It was even worse than the storm on a previous transatlantic voyage of which tore a fin off the ship's side.

Eckener said he planned to take

An excellent study of Mayor James J. Walker, of New York City, pictured in the comfortable outfit he affects while vacationing in Hamilton, Bermuda. Soft straw hat, soft shirt, open at the neck, and slipover sweater comprise the Mayor's outfit. Quite a difference from the usual sartorially perfect Jimmy, eh?

PRESIDENT BEGINS FISHING VACATION AT MOUNTAIN LODGE

Takes Holiday After Giving Address At Gettysburg

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 31.—After a lapse of two years, President Hoover again tried his fishing skill on a Pennsylvania mountain stream today. As the guest of Jay Cooke, Philadelphia financier, the executive is spending the week-end at Ogontz Lodge, about twenty miles outside the WilliamSPORT city limits.

Early this morning, Mr. Hoover was out on Larrys Creek with rod and reel. With him were Secretary of War Patrick Hurley, Governor John S. Fisher, of Pennsylvania, Lawrence Richey, his secretary, and Captain Joel T. Boone, the White House physician.

The small party motored yesterday afternoon from Washington with a stop at Gettysburg where the president delivered his annual Memorial Day address.

This speech, although containing little "news," represented the most ambitious oratorical effort of his White House incumbency. Basing it upon the famous Lincoln Gettysburg plea for a perpetuation of the fundamentals of American democracy, he suggested it might be a sound idea for today's national spokesmen to approach their problems with some of the emancipator's moderation and calm vision.

Present day abuse of politics, he said, all too often "muddies the stream of constructive thought and damps back the flow of well considered action."

POLICE CONTINUE SEARCH FOR "HIT-SKIP" AUTO DRIVER HERE

Police have been unable to learn the identity of a "hit-and-run" autoist who drove on without stopping after his car ran down and seriously injured C. C. Anderson, 44, colored, 225 Columbus St., at Main and Whiteman Sts., Thursday night.

The "hit-skip" driver's machine, a model A Ford coupe, was also occupied by another man, police were told. The men had previously driven up to Gordon Bros. garage, E. Second St., and had an employee put five gallons of gasoline in the tank. Then the driver got out to look at the oil gauge, ordered half a gallon of oil and while the attendant went inside the garage, he jumped in the machine and drove rapidly away without making payment.

The attendant saw the car turn north on Whiteman St., but failed to observe the license number on the machine.

The auto failed to stop at the Main St. intersection and knocked down Anderson, who was crossing the street. Anderson was removed to McClellan Hospital, where it was ascertained he suffered a concussion of the brain and a possible skull fracture. He had partly regained consciousness Saturday and his condition was said to be slightly improved. He is expected to recover.

As far as police have been able to learn there were no eye-witnesses of the accident.

JUST FIVE YEARS OLD

Baby Rose Marie, Tiny Radio Star, Now Rival Of Sophie Tucker

ROSE COMES FROM THE LOWER EAST SIDE OF NEW YORK

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, May 31.—Dame Sophie Tucker bills herself as "The Last of the Red Hot Mamas." But she hasn't reckoned with Baby Rose Marie.

For two years we have heard Rose Marie on the air, have seen her in vaudeville, and occasionally in a talkie short. Her voice and manner in her act are totally unlike that of a child. Deep, hard, holed, coo-shouting, uncanny, so pathetically unlike a little baby girl that, in a woman's heart at least, it stirs a maternal resentment.

The other day Rose Marie played hostess for an interview. We met her with curiosity, prepared to find that she was a child several years older than she was billed.

But she isn't. She is a little slip of a five-year-old with dark brown hair, almost black Latin eyes, kid-dish teeth, wide apart and, like the average healthy, mischievous youngster, always stirring like a little busy bee.

At first she sat primly in a chair as she had no doubt been told to do, and confided:

"I got a little brother Frankie, nine months old. Gee, he's a swell kid. I was only three when I started to sing. Frankie sings now—hon-eh-hee-dee. He sings 'blah-blah-blah-hh.'"

"You know where I live? Why, on the lower east side, between Avenue B and C. I got about a hundred kids to play with. I like to play out on the street. Once I went to a kindergarten for a day, but mama had me all cleaned up and a bad kid stepped on the back of my shoes and I went home and said I don't want to go back to that dirty school and mama says, while he slept."

HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR WIRE STEALING

Albert Donald Otto, 39, Belmont, suburb of Dayton, charged with grand larceny for alleged implication in the theft of copper wire worth $70 from along the Dayton branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was held to the grand jury under $500 bond by Municipal Judge E. D. Smith Saturday morning.

James Pierce, 17, Dayton, and Otis Lee Shearer, 19, W. Main St., were bound over to the grand jury Thursday on similar charges, while the case of Pierce's younger brother George, 16, will be transferred to Juvenile Court.

The three youths were alleged to have stolen the wire. Otto is claimed to have driven the boys to Dayton where the wire was sold for $20.

CIRCUS DAY IS COMING

Gentry Bros. Shows Here Monday, Featured By Big Street Parade In Morning

Circus ay, with its riot of color and noise, its street parade, its animals and clowns, its balloon salesman and hangers-on, comes back to Xenia Monday after an absence of several years.

But the old-time small boy practice of getting up early to "see the circus unload" takes on an entirely different tone. For Gentry Bros. Circus, which shows here Monday, has to unload of course, but it unloads from its own auto trucks and it is not the fascinating process involved in unloading from trains as in the past.

Gentry Bros. is a completely motorized circus, traveling from city to city in huge trucks and trailers and therefore unloading directly at the show grounds. Because of the advantage of its motorized equipment, it has not been forced to abandon the time-honored parade, which has been dropped by many circuses, but which will be staged here at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Afternoon and evening performances will be given at the show grounds on the Ringer lot, formerly the old Reserve baseball park, Cincinnati Ave. And not the least important feature of these performances will be the famous herd of elephants, known in the tent show business as the most intelligent pachyderms now performing before the public.

If this sounds like an overstatement, consider the fact that the Gentry Bros. elephants are managed entirely by young women, Louise Potter, Dell Williams and Gladys Tyler, who put the big animals through their paces as ably, or perhaps more ably, than men trainers.

The elephants are never temper-

PLEADS GUILTY AND PAROLED TO FATHER

Nathaniel Bayless, Dayton, formerly connected with the "Baseball Smokers," E. Main St., which was closed by police, appeared in Common Pleas Court Thursday and pleaded guilty to a charge of issuing a worthless check on which he was indicted by the May grand jury. Judge R. L. Gowdy paroled him for one year in the custody of his father, Nathaniel Bayless, Sr. The parole was granted by the court in view of the fact Bayless had made restitution to Samuel Engelman, Xenia clothing merchant to whom he had given the $10 check last November 26 without sufficient funds in The Winters National Bank and Trust Co., Dayton, on which the check was drawn.

amental, which is considered unusual, as most of them are females. Yet, peculiarly, the female elephant is not as temperamental as the male. The lady elephant usually acts like a lady all times, but the male is sometimes subject to tantrums, fits of sulks and other traits which make him disagreeable.

Intelligent as the elephant is, his training requires the utmost patience. It is a long, tedious task but once the beasts have learned what is wanted of them, they never forget. The Gentry elephants will bring up the rear of the parade here Monday.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

FAITH KNOWS—For we know that, if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.—2 Cor. 5:1.

THE LEFT TURN

One of the puzzling situations of automobile driving occurs on many crowded roads, when the motorist attempts to make a turn into some street at his left. If a line of cars is coming against him, he has to decide in about one second of time whether to wait for the cars he is meeting to pass, or to cut across them and make his turn ahead of these cars.

Many drivers take chances on these turns. If they think they will arrive at the street intersection about a second before some car coming from the opposite direction gets there, they make the turn, and trust to the accuracy of their judgment, or the caution of the driver coming from the opposite direction, to escape a collision.

Unfortunately, it is not always easy to judge the speed of an oncoming car. It may be directed by a reckless driver, or its speed may be faster than one realizes.

One reason why many people persist in darting ahead of cars coming from the opposite direction, is that they realize that there are cars coming behind them, and they dislike to annoy the drivers thereof by taking their time to make their turn. If a driver desiring to make such a turn, stops in the middle of the road, until there is a clear chance to cross, some roughnecks behind him may toot for him to hurry up and get out of the way. The wretchedly bad manners of such people should be treated with contempt. No attention should be paid to them, and they should be allowed to toot their horns to their heart's content.

It never pays to take any chances in driving a car. It is far better for a driver who wishes to make a turn to take his time for it, and not cross ahead of a line of traffic until he can see that he has plenty of time to do it. If all drivers would be governed by that principle, many distressing accidents would be avoided.

WORK UNFINISHED

The extreme difficulty of maintaining quiet and good order throughout the length and breadth of Nicaragua, even under the most favorable political circumstances, is emphasized by the report that two hundred marines have been sent to Bluefields on a cruiser in order to put an end to bandit depredations on the east coast of the country, which have included the sacking of an American-owned mine. The trouble, it appears, started almost immediately following the withdrawal of three hundred marines that were stationed in the troubled region up to last week. The lesson provided is a warning of the folly that would be committed if the government in Washington should listen to the demands of those who have been yelling for complete and immediate withdrawal of American marines from Nicaragua whether the government there wants them to leave or not. The result of such a withdrawal would probably be an immediate spread of the conditions which have arisen on the east coast.

Of course, the Moncada government does not desire a withdrawal. On the contrary, the president of the republic has time and time again indicated his satisfaction with the present situation and his desire that the United States keep some marines on the ground until a native force, clearly capable of policing the land, and particularly its jungles and waste places, can be developed. Such a force is in process of formation and training under American officers, but it may be some years before it can be perfected.

Chicago has started a propagandist campaign to convince the world that it really is a quiet and righteous city. But more than one pangster must die a natural death before anything like that can be put over.

PRISONS AND PUNISHMENT

Much talk these days about the treatment of convicts. It's a broad and deep subject. No human being quite knows another. Nobody completely understands anybody else. You can not enter into the emotions and thought processes or gauge the temptations of another. We know, however, that society—the great bulk of those who wish to keep the laws—must be protected from those who won't or can't live up to the rules. Hence law. Hence prison.

Adler, noted psychiatrist of Vienna, says severe punishment which grows out of the idea of revenge will confirm the criminal in thinking that he is right in his opinions and that the world is his enemy. Too severe punishment makes him feel he must defend himself against society. Dr. Adler says:

"We must show the criminal that his way of life is mistaken, that his courage is no courage at all and that society is only his enemy as long as he wants it to be his enemy. The great steps of prevention are to educate parents and teachers to understand human beings and to educate their children correspondingly."

There is a sound position in this theory of dealing with criminals, and it does not or need not mean softness, coddling, and making prison a tea garden. Prisons should not be ruled with brutality, but they should be ruled with rigid discipline, with severe rules, with applications of punishment when needed.

It is foolish to say severity grows out of revenge. Society does not wish revenge. But the people on the outside of prison walls are entitled to protection against the vicious, no matter how unfortunate the vicious may have been. No system of dealing with convicts is a good system which has no proper discipline and severity. Prison must be something more than room and board.

News dispatches tell us Spain has lifted the ban on political activity. Meetings, banquets, speeches by friends of republican government, may be had. There is still to be a censorship. Probably that will be lightened, perhaps lifted. Men and women in Spain will speak their feelings about government. King Alfonso is wise. He knows people. He sees the light. He does not wish a republic. Doubtless he wishes to remain a king. And so he doesn't try to keep the people from talking. He lets them get it out of their system.

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

How old is Washington, and what is its population now? In stopping off between trains, what can one see? What is the train time to New York?

The first cornerstone laid in Washington was on April 15, 1791. The 1930 census gives the city 485,716. Charles P. Stewart's "Seeing Washington" explains how to see Washington in less than a day. This pamphlet may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Central Press Washington Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C. The train time from Washington to New York is 4-1-2 to 5-1-2 hours. If you are coming from the south or west, free stopover is permitted on through tickets.

New York's Theatres

How many theatres are there in Greater New York City? The total number of theatres in Greater New York is approximately 500, which includes shows where movies make up some of the bill.

Eleven Million Bibles

Is the Bible still one of the most widely distributed books? During 1928 there were issued by the American Bible society 11,032,494 volumes of Scriptures, 6,484,626 in foreign fields and 4,547,868 in the United States. The society's total of issues during its 113 years of activity has been 205,096,251 volumes of Bibles, Testaments and portions.

Undersea to the Pole

Is it true that an attempt is going to be made to go to the north pole in a submarine? The Sir Hubert Wilkins expedition has already applied to the navy department for a charter for the use of the United States submarine O-12. The plan is to equip it with a machine capable of boring through ice 50 feet thick; a balloon for observation, and both radio and television. It is stated that no great unbroken ice floes have been observed in the Arctic regions, or icebergs of great size. The ice depth for most of the course to be followed is estimated at not more than 10 feet. Sir Hubert Wilkins will lead the expedition.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—Coming all the way from Africa to have a bad tooth fixed, Miss May Mott-Smith, writer and artist, is all set and anxious to get back to the jungle where she can "have a little peace."

Armed with nothing but a camera, the young woman lived for eighteen months among the African tribes and says she was better treated than her few days in New York among the gorillas of Broadway.

"There is nothing New York can give me that I can't get in the jungle," says Miss Smith.

Except a corroded stomach from synthetic gin.

CAREER

Annie Elms is 91 and at a party given to her the other night she said she had decided not to die for nine more years. Annie is wardrobe mistress at Minsky's East Side Winter Garden in Houston Street and the chorus girls call her mother.

And at the party the girls gave "Mother" she did a jig step, and then told about the old days when the Bowers was Broadway and "Mother" Elms was a saucy young soubrette just in from Cork.

And "Mother" is an actress yet. A few years ago she wandered up Broadway and appeared in "The Miracle" and then hurried right back to the East Side and the Winter Garden dolls after it was over. "Mother" thinks the Ghetto is the place for old ones.

LIGHT FINGERS

In case you are so minded, the noon hour is the best time for shoplifting in New York when the crowds cover the filching of goods. Still, the game can't be so good as it was, as on a busy Saturday recently when the three largest department stores in the midtown section totaled 1,000,000 shoppers, there were only about twenty arrests for shoplifting.

Nine-tenths of the arrests are women between the ages of 17 and 30, the young ones after a bit of finery to wear to a party, the older ones professionals who owe their living to their adeptness of hand and alertness of eye.

ONLY ONE MORE RIVER TO CROSS

WELCOME NEW SENATORS RECEIVE DEPENDS MUCH ON RECOMMENDATION OF CAMPAIGN FUND PROBE GROUP

By CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Illinois probably is the most important single state in this year's fight for victory in the autumn congressional elections, but New Jersey is not much less so. It is about as interesting, anyway.

Illinois is larger, with more votes. But the thing that makes it more particularly significant is its geography, plus its size, in connection with the wet-and-dry issue. Even if New Jersey were as large as Illinois, it is wet, and everyone knows it is already. Moreover, by going wet next November it will lend no particular aid and comfort to wets in nearby territory, for all these neighboring wets are so predominant in their own various communities as not to need any encouragement.

Illinois, however, is only doubtfully damp, if at all—not in Cook county, but "down state." It is so doubtfully damp that it is represented at present by two dry senators. It is likewise on the edge of the dry corn belt. How it goes, on the wet-and-dry proposition, will make a heap of difference.

The Illinois campaign will be a clean-cut wet-and-dry scrap, too—between the dry Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and the wet J. Hamilton Lewis for the senate.

President Hoover having so definitely aligned himself with the drys, a victory by the Democratic Mr. Lewis would severely sidewise him also, both as a prohibitionist and as a G. O. P. chief executive. Indeed, Mr. Hoover will be badly sidewise if Jim Ham, though beaten, cuts deeply into the normal Illinois Republican majority of all the way from 500,000 up to nearly a million.

Mrs. McCormick being opposed to American entrance into the world court, which Mr. Hoover favors, presumably is not entirely satisfactory to the president, either, but her election would be politically much better for him than Jim Ham Lewis.

Illinois, therefore, is vastly important—not to mention being hugely interesting on account of the picturesque contrasting personalities of its rival senate candidates.

Nevertheless, in its peculiar way, New Jersey presents a point or two of importance (in addition to interest) that it would be hard to overshadow.

New Jersey has not, like Illinois, already chosen its senate candidates.

We may set it down as a foregone conclusion that Alexander Simpson, celebrated as prosecutor in the nationally-advertised Hallis-Mills murder case of two or three years ago, will be the Democrats' choice at the June 17 primaries—and a dripping wet choice.

The Republicans have recognized all along that New Jersey may be a difficult state for them to carry next autumn, because of its wetness and the dryness of the Washington administration. It was because this fact was so fully realized that Dwight W. Morrow originally was thought up for the G. O. P. nomination, as a cracking formidable candidate.

Mr. Morrow, Republicanly speaking, looked like an exceedingly bright idea.

True, he did not suit quite everybody. He did not suit Joseph E. Frelinghuysen, who was a senator from New Jersey once before, but lost out for a second term, presumably on account of his dryness, and his new book, which will be about actors.

Incidentally, in "Trumpet in the Dust," many persons will recognize in the hero-novelist man, who rose from a reporter in a hick town to become a New York star, much of Fowler's own life—even to the cussin' and such.

is eager to have his party name him again this time.

Mr. Frelinghuysen is nothing like as heavy a weight as Mr. Morrow. Still, he knows a good bit about politics, he has odds of money, and in Mr. Morrow's absence at the London naval conference, he scratched gravel assiduously—digging up, among other things, some rather flabby wetish views; enough so to antagonize his former dry friends, whatever they turn out to be forth to him as a bid for wet support.

Just the same, Mr. Morrow continued to look like much the best bet as the Jersey G. O. P.'s selection for the senate at the June primaries.

For one thing, he was generally assumed to have Mr. Hoover's blessing. Not officially, of course; in theory the White House keeps out of state contests, but naturally its tenant has his personal preferences, and it helps a candidate like everything to have the impression abroad that the president is pulling for him.

The great problem was: Proclaiming himself a dry, could Mr. Morrow win the nomination, in so wet a state, against the now dampish Mr. Frelinghuysen? If so, could he beat the soaking wet Mr. Simpson at the polls?—for many eminent political authorities believe Jersey to be wetter than it is Republican. And yet, could Mr. Morrow run as a wet with the dry Mr. Hoover's blessing?

All that speculation has since gone into the discard.

Back home, Mr. Morrow, as we know, has declared for the Eighteenth amendment's amendment.

It resembles a lot of these wet-and-dry declarations—susceptible to a number of different interpretations. Mr. Morrow did not say he is not a prohibitionist in principle; more or less the contrary. He does not appear to be as wet as Mr. Simpson, but he is decidedly wetter than Mr. Frelinghuysen—or, anyhow, as far as his wetness goes, he evidently means what he says, and Mr. Frelinghuysen is not convincing.

Be that as it may, Mr. Morrow is too wet for the drys.

So much is certain, for, before his declaration was many hours old, out came Representative Franklin W. Fort of East Orange with his announcement of his bone dry G. O. P. Jersey candidacy—which, we are safe in gambling, means that every ounce of sentiment the Jersey drys can muster is back of him.

And although Jersey is a wet state, it would be a mistake to consider it so all-fired wet that, in the count of a wet G. O. P. split between two such rivals as, for instance, Mr. Morrow and Mr. Frelinghuysen, a dry like Mr. Fort might not slip in between them and cop off the prize they both are striving for.

Now, as to Mr. Hoover's blessing? Has Mr. Morrow forfeited it?—by his wetness. And how about Mr. Fort?

No one can answer these questions definitely, but some answers are being guessed at.

It is worth recalling that Mr. Fort seemed to be pretty solid with Mr. Hoover for awhile after the latter's inauguration. Senator Walter E. Edge was being suggested even then for an important diplomatic job and the impression was, at that stage of the game, that Mr. Fort was the White House's notion of just the right man to succeed him in the senate.

As months passed, however, the East Orangeman did not seem to wax in presidential favor, and when Senator Edge finally was appointed ambassador to France, instead of Mr. Fort, David Baird, Jr., was named to serve in the senate as a stop gap until Mr. Morrow was available—after the London conference.

So, if the Jersey senate fight is not as intrinsically important as Illinois, it is an interesting fight, for all that.

HONOR AMONG THIEVES

"Did you notice any suspicious characters about the neighborhood?" the judge inquired.

"Sure, yer honor," replied the new cop. "I saw but one man, and I asked him what he was doing there at that time of night. Sez he:

"I have no business here right now, but I expect to open a bank in this vicinity later on."

"Yes," replied the magistrate heatedly, "and he did open a bank in the vicinity later on and steal $10,000."

"Beggor yer honor," answered the cop after a pause, "the man may have been a thief but he was no bar."

Next: "Too Late to Run Away."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Vegetable Diet

"DEAR DOCTOR: One of the members of our family has been put on a very low protein diet—meat, fish and eggs, only three times a week. To avoid irritating him, the whole family has gone vegetarian, and after four months, everybody admits to feeling pretty darned good!"

"We want to find out more ways than we know how to disguise the familiar vegetables and fruits. The cook books recommended in libraries don't answer our purpose. Can you, and we know you can, suggest a book that will help us?"

Mr. P.

There are many who would be benefited by going on a vegetarian or semi-vegetarian diet, there's no doubt about it. I think, with McCollum, that the chief reason is that with the omission of flesh foods, one gets an adequate amount of fruits and vegetables and milk, and when flesh food is taken, one is not apt to have enough of these other foods.

Fruits, vegetables, milk and nuts not only furnish more vitamins and mineral elements and bulk, but they are all alkaline in reaction, so make the diet predominantly alkaline, as it should be, instead of acid.

But when you omit flesh foods, remember you have to give more conscious attention to getting your protein in milk and milk dishes, eggs, cheese and nuts. The legumes (beans, peas and lentils) have goodly amounts of protein, but it is not a complete protein; that is, it hasn't all of the building and repair elements necessary, while the others that I have mentioned, have.

There are vegetarian cook books which you can get. Some that I know of are "The Home Dietitian," by Woodcock; "The New Cookery," by Lenna Cooper, and "The Book of Green Vegetables," by Gold and Gilbert. Any bookstore will order these for you if they are not in stock.

For those who are interested, we

"Dear Doctor: I am 48 years old and have to start now to earn my own living. I was thinking of having my face lifted through skin peeling. I have been told that the skin peeling treatment is dangerous. What is your opinion of these?"

MISS D.

Do not have any peeling done. It may be dangerous, Miss D. If you must have some done, ring up your county medical society and ask for the names of some plastic surgeons.

There is no "shrinking" powder, that I know of.

Mrs. K.: Our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women answers your questions. See column rules for obtaining it.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

WORRIED: I am afraid the only thing to do is to forget the boy, dear. Of course he MAY come back, so don't worry too much.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Have been married eight years, and the first five no couple could have got along any better than we did. But three years ago a home breaker stepped between us and it has been trouble ever since. He took her to my home and kept her there nearly a week when I was sick at my mother's. No one could imagine my feelings when I found this out, for I trusted my husband and thought he was as true as steel to me. Is there any law for a woman of that kind? I surely would use it, for she has wrecked my life."

"Virginia, I was operated on two months ago, and am not able to make my own living. Could I get alimony until I am able to support myself? For seven years I worked in the field like a man and did the housework, too, but never once has he given me any credit for it. He told me yesterday I cost him more than I'd ever be worth to him."

"I am a nice, clean housekeeper and a good cook, and keep his clothes clean and ready for him at all times and have tried every way to get along with him. I love him better than life itself and would never be happy without him, but can't continue this way much longer. Your advice will be readily accepted."

BECKY TOD.

It's an odd thing that so many women do more than their share in the early years of marriage, and they are so often the first to be discarded by their mates when marriage gets to be an old story. Gratitude sometimes seems to me the scarcest of all virtues.

You can sue a woman for alienation of her husband's affections if she has any money, and maybe punish her somewhat by publishing the fact that she is a home breaker, but I think this rarely does any good—in fact, is likely to harm you more than it does her. You can send a thief to jail if they only steal your diamond ring, but if they steal your good name or your husband, little can be done to make them suffer.

If you love your husband, as you say, why not try in every way to win him back. Don't quarrel. Make up your mind that you will not speak an angry word, even if you have to go away by yourself to keep silent. Try to make his home a happy, companionable place. Then if the worst comes, and you feel you can no longer live with him, you will have no regrets. A real home is more than a place where the house is clean, good meals served, and clothes kept in order, you know.

If you do have to divorce him, you can doubtless get alimony, at least until such time as you are strong enough to support yourself.

PUZZLED ME: I'm sure I can't tell you which one of the boys to go with. All things being equal, I should think you would choose the one you like best, which is the older one.

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

SANDAL GOOD FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY

You may be surprised to know that when I saw in the newspapers a story to the effect that beauty specialists are advocating the use of sandals and polished toenails, I was greatly pleased.

The reason for my pleasure is that, although such a fad is a far-fetched, it will have two benefits. First, we shall learn the value of the sandal to give freedom to the toes, and hence to keep the feet healthy. Second, it will make us a little more aware of the necessity of beautifying the feet. When we become a little more "foot conscious" we are going to benefit in health and beauty.

I have said before, and it doesn't do any harm to repeat it, that feet are today the ugliest things about women. In many instances, women's bare feet are actually repulsive. And that is not natural, nor necessary. So, anything that brings women's attention to the care of their feet has my hearty approval, both from a health and from a beauty standpoint.

Another thing—I'd like to see some enterprising shoe firm devise a sandal that is both smart looking and comfortable. I'd like to see women wear such sandals around their homes, in place of the tricky thin mules and gorgeous pumps that constitute the footgear of the lounging attire of today.

The problem of the appearance of feet today is the biggest beauty and health problem that women have. It involves more than merely the shapes of toes, and the presence or absence of bunions and corns. It is the cause, often, of nervous troubles and general ill health.

Once we begin to take a pride in the appearance of our feet—unstocked and unshod—we are on the right track. And even an extreme fad like that recently storied in the newspapers, at least starts the foot-health crusade.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Two softball leagues instituted at Wilmington this season are having their troubles. They are experiencing much the same difficulties that were encountered during the first few seasons of the sport in Xenia. At Wilmington it is said the leagues are becoming disorganized, schedules are being interpreted differently by players, umpires and fans alike.

Umpires are chosen from spectators who volunteer their services or whose services are solicited just before game time. As a result it can be easily understood that many arbiters are ignorant of the regulations. This unfamiliarity with the rules while excusable, does not please the fans and players and the usual bickering results.

The problem of officials for the games has been solved to some extent in Xenia this season by the fact there are only a limited number of persons who are permitted to officiate the games. These few are probably as well acquainted with the intricate rules as any of the players.

Of course it is too late to do anything about it, but with all due regard to the schedule makers who had to revise the season's softball schedules in Xenia on short notice three weeks ago, it would have been more satisfactory if no allowance had been made for holidays such as Memorial Day and Fourth of July.

It would have been better if league games had been scheduled for holidays and then not played. If this policy had been followed all National League games throughout the season would have been played on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and all American League contests on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

As it is, because of the Memorial Day holiday, each week of play, at least until July 4, will begin on Tuesdays instead of Mondays, and end on Mondays instead of Fridays.

This arrangement may cause some confusion.

HOYT AND KOENIG TRADED TO DETROIT

NEW YORK, May 31.—Harry Rice, left handed hitting outfielder, Owen Carroll, pitcher, and George Westling, infielder, all of the Detroit Tigers, will join the New York Yankees in Chicago next Tuesday as the result of a trade announced today. The Tigers receive in exchange for the trio Waite Hoyt, for ten years an ace pitcher in the American League, and Mark Koenig, shortstop.

No cash was involved, it was said.

Rice is a former St. Louis Browns star. He has been hitting over 300 this season. Westling is a clever fielder but weak hitter. Carroll has not won a game this season.

Edward G. Barrow, Yankee official, said that the club did not like to part with Hoyt but he had been demanded by the Tigers and the trade was considered essential to improve the Yankee garden with Rice.

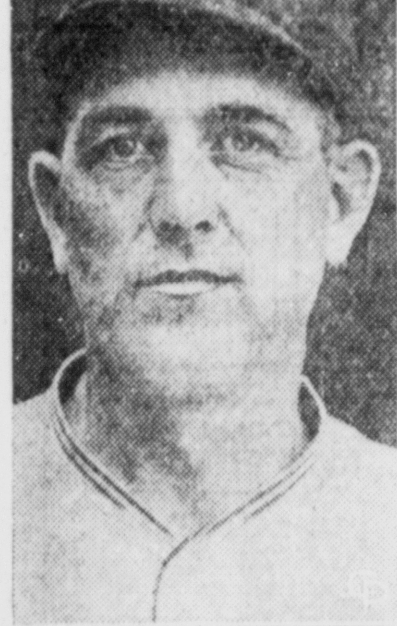

TO RELEASE EHMKE

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—Howard Ehmke, veteran hurler of the Athletics, who was the hero of the world's series with the Chicago Cubs last year, will be given his unconditional release as soon as waivers from other clubs are received, Manager Connie Mack said today.

Ehmke's arm is failing, Mack said.

GOLF TOURNEY AND DINNER-DANCE ARE HOLIDAY FEATURES

Holiday activities at the Xenia Country Club Memorial Day, marking the formal opening of the club for the summer, were featured in the afternoon by a flag golf tournament for men and women in which there were more than thirty entries.

P. B. Yockey won the tourney for men and Dr. L. W. Sontag, Yellow Springs, was runnerup. Allotted eighty-nine strokes, including his handicap of nineteen, Yockey twice negotiated the nine-hole course and was playing the second hole on his third round. Dr. Sontag was also playing the same hole at the expiration of his eighty allotted strokes but Yockey's ball rested nearer the cup. Miss Helen LeSourd advanced the farthest among the women entries. Prizes of golf balls were awarded the winners.

The afternoon of golfing was climaxed at 6:30 o'clock by a dinner served at the club house with covers being laid for 110 people. A dance was scheduled to follow in the newly-constructed outside cement pavilion, situated on the former location of the clay tennis courts, but the evening proved too chilly to use the pavilion and the dance was held indoors with music furnished by a colored orchestra.

YOUNGSTER WIN S AUTO SPEED CLASSIC; ONE DRIVER KILLED

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—Cy Marshall, of Detroit, brother of Paul Marshall, killed yesterday in part of the $10,000 Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, still was in serious condition today as a result of injuries received in the fatal smashup.

The accident which brought the death of the mechanic and the serious injury to his brother saddened the immense crowd of 160,000 which saw Billy Arnold, Chicago boy, easily win the automobile race classic. Arnold's performance in remaining in the lead for all but two of the 200 laps of the race was considered remarkable.

The faithful workers S. S. classes held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bear Thursday evening, May 29.

Mrs. Joe Coy, vice president, presided at the business session. After a short study of the lesson in "Parliamentary Law," a contest on the subject was held, each one to write what he or she remembered of the lessons given. Mrs. Robert Bear won first prize and H. C. Haverstick second prize.

Other prize winners were: Mrs. Lewis Bailey, first; Lizzie Haverstick, second; in the Biblical alphabet contest; Mrs. H. M. Stewart, first; and Miss Julia Lantz, second in a bird contest. Mrs. Clatie Sipe introduced several amusing and mystifying stunts.

GANG KILLING BEING PROBED

CHICAGO, May 31.—One man was killed and two others seriously wounded today in a flare up of gangland warfare in the old "valley district."

The killers, four or five in number, riding in a big black touring car, crowded an automobile bearing their victims into the curb, poured a hail of bullets from shotguns and sub machine guns into the car and sped away.

The driver of the beleaguered car slumped over the wheel dead. He was tentatively identified as Philip Gnoffo.

Two other men were found wounded in the rear seat of the machine.

Gnoffo, the victim, was alleged by police to have been a gunman and extortionist and a former member of the powerful Genna gang.

The two wounded men gave their names as William Cranio, 48, of Toledo, O., and Joseph Flannaca, 34, of Rochester, N. Y. Both refused to talk and police telegraphed Toledo and Rochester for information concerning them.

Flannaca said he was an oil salesman while Cranio said he had arrived in Chicago only yesterday.

PROP KILLS WOMAN

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 31.—Having stepped into the flashing propeller blades of the plane in which she had just ridden, Mrs. Vera Meier of Chicago was dead here today. The propeller struck her on the forehead and she died at a hospital thirty minutes later.

FOR SOME FOLKS!

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Today was another holiday for the national capital.

All government departments and bureaus were closed by executive action, the cabinet having decided to grant thousands of government clerks an extra half-holiday in order to permit a triple holiday of Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday half-holidays will be postponed a week to make up the time.

SWIM

Picture a windmill whose blades are equally spaced. In this same manner use your arms, always remembering first one arm must pull the other.

Before trying the arm action in the water, take a large mirror, draw a chalk line across the center of it and place it upon a chair. Now stoop over until the eyes are level with this line and move your arms first one and then the other towards the line, then back to your side and up over your head in a circular motion as illustrated.

Be sure that your finger tips touch the chalk line. It is not necessary to bend your arm at the elbow, but it must be entirely stiff because the muscles should be relaxed.

Continue this practice until it becomes a simple matter and the shoulders do not ache from action.

Motion of the plaintiff for a new trial was denied in the case of LeRoy Simpson against Lenore Wright.

CASES DISMISSED

Because the plaintiff's claims have been satisfied the suit of John T. Harbine, Jr., against David Adams and Ethelene Adams has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court. Case of The Greene County Hardware Co. against Charles E. Saunders was also dismissed by the plaintiff.

SALE AUTHORIZED

In the case of the Central Acceptance Corp. against W. T. Wroe and others in Common Pleas Court, the court ruled the plaintiff has a property lien worth $300 and is entitled to have the defendant's goods and chattels sold at sheriff's sale.

SOFTBALL LOOP STANDINGS

The Lang Chevrolet Co. and Graham Paints, the only teams in either the National or American Leagues which are still undefeated, will meet Monday night in a National League tilt involving the leadership of this league.

Other softball games on next week's menu are: Tuesday night—D. T. C. Club vs. Cretorian; Wednesday night—Chaddeys vs. Company L; Thursday night—Lang Chevrolet Co. vs. Geyers; Friday night—Krippendorf vs. Kiwanis-Rotary.

The fact no game was scheduled for Memorial Day makes it necessary for the Lang Chevrolet Co. to play two games next week within a space of four days and the approaching Lang-Geyers argument looms as the best of the week. Fans have been anxiously awaiting the first meeting of the season between these two outstanding teams. League standings follow:

DAD'S GIRL

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Clara Dee Forester is the motherless, only daughter of a millionaire. She has lived a petted, pampered life of idle extravagance. Disgusted with the wealthy young, her father left her one dollar at his death, hoping that some quality in her would respond to the situation and make her a successful woman. She goes to Mrs. Flynn's boarding house to live, and has made little progress when she attends a party at Ivan Moreau's studio and decides to model for him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

She recognized the more prominent names among the men: Bert Ketchum, the sculptor, who had achieved such spectacular fame only a year ago, with his clever and daring interpretations of "life's seven ages," which had won the Tremblay medal, in their class.

Clara Dee had especially remembered them because she had gone with the art classes at school, to see the figures on exhibition at the museum, and the teacher had praised them with such unusual enthusiasm. His favorite model, formed, with enormous brown eyes and golden hair, clung possessively to his arm, avoiding the others with an air of affected shyness.

There was also "Ronny" Malloy, the portrait painter of society's elite. Clara Dee was very glad that she had not met him before now, had she been at home this summer and her father had lived, he would have had it done.

She was disappointed in Zaza Roth, the prominent pastel artist. Tall and lank as a birch tree, with a dark, muddy complexion, she was doddily dressed in a drab colored gown which was over-ornamented and served only to increase her drabness. An attractive elderly man with a neatly clipped grey mustache, followed her about as attentively as if she were quite the most fascinating woman present. There were many less celebrated among the guests, but they all talked and danced together with an easy familiarity.

Ivan based upon the first dance with Clara Dee and she instantly forgot her partner in the ecstasy of the rhythm. Her feet were as light as the floating chiffon of her gown and she was happily unaware of the intensity with which the artist watched her as he deftly guided her about the floor. The great, high-ceilinged room, with its priceless Gobelin tapestries, decorations and furnishings, the sensuous music, the exotic incense which hung heavy on the air and enveloped them like an invisible mist, mingling with the perfume worn by the women, cosmetics, and the odor from huge urns of roses, snapdragons and long stemmed asters scattered about. Once more, she moved where people lived for beauty and pleasure and her despair of the past month was only a hideous dream. She hoped she would not waken suddenly from this happy one.

"Are you one of the fairies come to earth with us mortals for just an evening?" Ivan whispered, close to her ear.

She smiled dreamily. "I think I shall have every dance with you, lest you disappear suddenly while I am away from you," he continued. Then a sudden fire in his black eyes frightened, yet fascinated her. When one has grown to womanhood on adoration, and indulgence and flattery, it is not easy to exchange them for criticism, suspicion and dislike. Stuff of heroes, perhaps, but necessarily melodramatic.

"I'm not indebted to Estelle for bringing you," he told her later in the evening. "She knows pretty well what I require in a model, but it's all luck that she ever found you."

"But I don't think I should care to be a model," Clara Dee objected timidly. "I only came to the party to please Miss Kay."

"And it pleases me more than I can tell you. I dread to think of how my work would suffer in the future without you, now that I have seen you. Estelle has been attempting to describe you to me, but I paid little heed. There is beauty and beauty, you know, but yours is a very unusual type. Do you think it would be sporting of you to refuse me the coveted opportunity of my career, to deprive the world of such work as would result from the inspiration you could give me?"

Why shall we put it that way. Why shall we be accomplishing something for humanity? She wondered for a moment what Winfield would say if she were to accept such a position. Imagining what he would say, she hastily rejected the thought, for it made her feel uncomfortable. But, what matter—would he rather she starved? He wasn't helping her in any way to solve her problem—a very serious problem just at present. This wasn't just the work she would choose for a career, yet it was an honorable one and quite as important as many others. Of course, there were all kinds of models just as there were all kinds of girls doing other work.

In the end it was arranged that she should come to work the next day, and for a few hours each day, she would receive the same amount that she had been paid at the Star grocery for several days of menial labor. Ivan drove the girls home in his own car. Clara Dee sank into the embracing luxury of the upholstery with a sigh of familiar contentment.

Her room seemed to have shrunk during her absence and appeared more shabby than she had believed it to be. Having lived in it for so long without entering more beautiful rooms, she had grown accustomed to its homely shelter and had really been grateful for it. Contrasting it with the splendor she had just quitted, was as comparing a pebble with a mountain of grandeur.

"How very little I ever appreciated my luxurious life," she reflected, carefully hanging the orchid chiffon in its protecting slip. Her thoughts were tumultuous. In a way, she was happy to again have the assurance of an income, yet not so happy as she had been in her anticipation of working at the Star. There was something which dulled the keen edge of her triumph in securing the position.

"But I shall enjoy it, I'm sure. I haven't even tried it out yet, so I may like the work better than I expect," she reassured herself.

The hours were more to her accustomed routine in that other world—it seemed to her now another world—though only a few blocks removed from her present surroundings. She took a taxi up town next morning and arrived as freshly attractive as if her ensemble suit were not of last season's model.

Ivan greeted her with businesslike crispness, which was quite as contradictory to his manner of the previous evening as were the soiled smock he wore over a soft shirt open at the throat and the linen trousers, to his immaculate evening clothes.

"This will be your dressing room," he indicated a small room and bath—like the private suites

The Theater

Al Jolson, who not only "made" Warner Bros., but "made" the entire talkie industry as well, is deserting the ranks of his first love in the talking picture field.

Having completed "Big Boy" for talkies as a passing fad have come Warner Bros., Jolson and his wife plan to go to Europe for a rest and, on their return, Al will make his next talkie for United Artists, since he has joined the company of the select. The film does not go into production until November.

The Warners were having their troubles back in 1926 when the Western Electric people offered them the advantages of motion pictures that would speak.

The bigger producing companies had laughed the invention down, because it had been tried for years without success. The Warners, however, were in a position to try anything. They were among the weaker companies and Warner stock was then quoted at 9.

Young Sam Warner coaxed his brothers into giving the new stunt a trial, and their feature talkie films and shorts attracting the curious for a time, went well and their stock jumped to more than a hundred.

The public tired of the talkies, however, because of the lack of stories and Warner stock dropped back to fifteen before Jolson, who was given a generous offer to make the first talking picture, came out with his first effort. The picture was "The Jazz Singer" and not only put Warners on their feet but it "sold" the talkies to the public.

The success of this film panicked the industry and found Warner Bros., already equipped with sound equipment, well ahead of the field. It gave them an advantage they never have relinquished. They absorbed First National, one of their powerful competitors and set about on a talkie program that has given them distinct leadership whereas before they represented one of the weakest companies. Jolson is given much credit for the result. Many producers who looked upon the

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Donges left for New York, from where they will sail for Europe to be gone all summer.

Plans have been made by the firm of George Dodds and Sons for the erection of a one-story addition to its marble plant which will double its present capacity.

The G. A. R. accommodations committee has been doing good work and up to date sleeping accommodations for 2,700 people have been obtained.

AKRON UNIVERSITY INSTITUTES RADIO SPEAKING CLASSES

AKRON, O., May 31. — Another twentieth century educational innovation was inaugurated recently when Akron University instituted the first experiment in college-radio-speaking classes in the United States.

Paul Sparks, a sophomore in the engineering class, delivered the inaugural speech which was broadcast to the engineers public-speaking class. Sparks' talk was given before a microphone in the "speech office" and was heard by a large group of students in an adjoining class room. The speaking class is conducted by Professor Donald Hayworth, head of the speech department at the university.

Prof. Hayworth, who is responsible for this new educational method, started to use a microphone and loud speaker a few weeks ago in two of his classes as a means of encouraging his students to get the most out of their speech-making ability, both for public appearance and radio.

Under the present method, Professor Hayworth gives each student an opportunity to use the microphone in order to accustom the would-be radio speaker to the alleged vicissitudes of "mike fright."

The possibility of using Professor Hayworth's method in modern public school instruction was foreseen when Dr. Thomas W. Gosline, superintendent of Akron public schools, conferred with superintendents from northern Ohio cities on the new mode of instruction.

At a recent round table discussion on the future use of the radio to bring master teachers before large groups of students, R. G. Jones, superintendent of Cleveland schools, outlined a program for the broadcasting of supplementary educational programs by eminent educators to all cities in this section of the state.

REVIVAL SERVICES BRING VISITORS

"The Second Coming of Christ," will be the subject of Evangelist Raun's sermon at the Opera House Sunday night at 8 o'clock. Saturday night the subject discussed will be "The Unpardonable Sin" and the Rev. G. T. Bateman of the Bowersville Church will lead the music. Services will be continued every night next week. Great interest is being manifested by the people in these services and every night this week large delegations have attended the meeting from this and nearby counties.

Friday night a delegation came from Springfield and the evangelist delivered an illustrated lecture on "The Bible and How to Understand It" which was well received. In the absence of song leader Bateman, Miss Lucile Raun, the evangelist's daughter from Cincinnati, led the music and sang "When They Ring the Golden Bells For You and Me." Twenty-five charter members have enrolled in the new Church of Christ congregation soon to be established in this city.

DISTRICT SCOUT COMMITTEE WILL MEET HERE MONDAY

Xenia District Committee Boy Scouts of America will meet in Central High School, Monday at 7:30 p. m. according to a recent announcement made by Dr. Austin Patterson, chairman.

Arrangements for local Scouts to attend Camp Miami on the Bryan farm near Yellow Springs will be made. Several matters of unfinished business from the last meeting will also be considered Monday evening.

According to Homer T. Gratz, field scout executive, Greene County scout leaders are making commendable progress in their work. "Our men here are now making plans for a contest to be held among Greene County troops. It will last from June until the first of October and will be put on a merit and demerit basis. Preliminary plans for this competitive project were made recently by a committee composed of S. N. McClellan, E. A. Roberts, E. L. Blackburn, and the Rev. Adrian G. Lehold. Unfortunately it was impossible for some of our other scoutmasters to be present. However, the final adoption of the committee's work will be made Monday night," said the field executive.

Star Gazing

By RADIE HARRIS

By Central Press

Is Mrs. Rutstein's little girl, Lillian.

Born in Boston, Mass. Friday, December 13, 1910, at ten minutes past the witching hour. Hates people who say, "How old did you SAY you are?"

Went to the theater before she was born. Her mother believed in pre-natal influence and wanted her daughter to be an embryonic Sophie Tucker.

Despite the pre-natal influence, couldn't sing a note for the first five years. So her mother decided she was much better seen than heard. And took her to the Fox Lee Studios.

Objected to not being allowed to play like other children until she had to kiss Wesley Barry in a scene. Decided then and there she liked pictures.

Applied for her first stage job and was turned down because the casting called for a boy. Went home and returned ten minutes later dressed as a boy. "I'm the brother of the little girl who was just here," she announced. P. S. She got the job.

Practical. Has always asked her own salary. At the age of ten asked Henry Savage $200 a week for her role in "Shavings." And settled for $75.

When she was fourteen years old, presented herself to J. J. Shubert as "an emotional actress." Was told that he was casting for "Artists and Models" and "an emotional actress" wouldn't help any. Asked if she could sing, she answered, "I don't sing well, but I sing loud." And proceeded to do a Sophie Tucker version of "Red Hot Mama."

Substituted for Winnie Lightner in Frank Fay's "Revels." Pulled a Houdini by playing eight roles in Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

Was appearing on the Ziegfeld roof with Maurice Chevalier when Jesse Lasky sought her out for a screen test. Had already taken tests for every other company, but was told she didn't have a camera face. Same companies now bemoaning the fact that Paramount beat them to it.

Hates gaga ingenue roles, olives, traffic cops who stop you when you are going three miles over the hour, "dressing up" and radishes.

Adores Lillian Gish because all her life she has wanted to be delicate and wistful. And knows she never will.

Is a state secret that she wants to play "Joan of Arc" some day. Only she tells everybody about it. Always wears her stockings on the wrong side because she thinks it makes them look sheer. Can't keep hairpins in her hair or money in her pocket.

When she likes a dish, eats it until she can't look it in the face again. Current favorite is chow mein and spaghetti.

Is afraid of the dark, but will always look for a burglar.

Hates Shopping. Likes everything to match. Has

LILLIAN ROTH

Lat for every dress, but never wears one. Hates shopping. Wishes she could order one model a year and have it duplicated in different shades and materials.

Travels everywhere with a tennis racket that she has had since she was eleven years old. Has yet to play a game.

Saves all her heads that became unstrung. Expects to make a necklace of them in her dotage.

Can't pass a blind man on the street.

Says "Oh Hello!" when she wants to swear.

Always wanted to be a business woman. Played the market last fall. Has stuck to acting ever since.

Splits her salary check every week with her younger sister and mother. Her mother still believes in pre-natal influence.

CHANGE PLANS

"Hello Mrs. Smith!"

"I just called to tell you that the Townsley Hatchery in Xenia is selling their baby chicks during the month of June for 12c apiece.

"That offers a very good opportunity for you to re-stock your brooder house with their 'Thorough' chicks from Ohio Accredited and Blood Tested stock.

"June chicks will make September broilers you know, and the price will be better then. Even if you want them for layers they will be in production by December when they are well fed and cared for.

"If you want them just for the market the Heavy Mixed chicks at 10c each gives you an opportunity to make a very good profit.

"The started chicks ranging from one to four weeks old are offered at an attractive price, too, so if you want chicks that will develop earlier in the season they will be worth while considering.

"Why not call the Hatchery and make arrangements for another lot of these good chicks at so reasonable a price? The phone number is 129.

"The better plan of course, is to call at the Hatchery where you can see the chicks and be advised regarding their breed, quality, price, etc."
